

Every picture tells a story so they say: well we believe ours say it beautifully "Relaxed, charming and unpretentious".

The Angel & Royal is located in the centre of the ancient market town of Grantham just off the Ermine Way (A1) and is reputed to be Britain's oldest Inn dating back to 1203. You will marvel at the many splendid architectural features this historic building hides behind its facade. Now safely back in private ownership, the location makes it a perfect base for holding a small meeting or function of just dropping in for lunch or dinner. Quality British food at sensible prices, cooked simply using the finest ingredients from award winning suppliers is our philosophy.

The 29 individually designed bedrooms feature superb beds many with four posters and are fitted throughout with many personal and thoughtful extras. They have the latest TV/DVD/CD technology, valet centres, butler's hospitality tray to luxurious toiletries and the fluffiest of towels.

Above all at the Angel someone will always be shining over you with the warmest of welcomes.

Seven past Kings of England have stayed at the Angel and it was in the magnificent King's Dining Room that Richard III in 1487 signed the death warrant for the Duke of Buckingham, a copy of which is on display today.

A lavish but tasteful £2 million refurbishment has now been completed and incorporates many of the building's historic roots which has created a hotel that is very special in a part of Britain that even today in the 21st century still hides a beautiful unspoilt part of our countryside.
